Others May Have Perished
in Fire Which Destroys Part of Scenic Railway
at Park Near Montreal

Dead Are Not Identified

Bodies Are Taken Away

MONTREAL, Aug. 10.—Seven persons were burned to death to-night in a fire on a scenic railway at Dominion Park, an amusement resort near this city.

The bodies of three men, three women and a boy were recovered from the ruins shortly before midnight. It is feared several more persons lost their lives, and that the bodies will be recovered when search resumed to-morrow. It has been impossible so far to identify the dead.

The cause of the fire, which not only destroyed part of the scenic railway, but also the "Mystic City" nearby, is unknown, but it is believed it was started by a lighted cigarette or match. The flames, fanned by a westerly wind, spread quickly, and only a river, on the banks of which the amusement park is located, checked the fire from spreading to the rest of the resort across the stream.

Merrymakers Fall Into Flames

The flames broke out in the mill. When the firemen arrived, the mill was a blazing pyre, and a few minutes later that part of the railway constructed over the mill fell with a crash into the roaring furnace. According to witnesses, a car filled with merry-makers took a fatal leap from the tracks.

From the mill could be heard moans and cries for help, but the firemen found it possible to rescue only a few of the men, women and children trapped in the blazing structure. They did succeed, however, in cutting their way through the walls and dragging forth a few persons almost smothered by the smoke.

Two of the bodies were found huddled together in the ruins. The others lay in different parts of the burned building, so badly charred that it is believed identification can be established in only one or two cases, and these by watch charms and rings worn by the victims.

Sousa's Band Played Ragtime
When reports of the fire reached the city thousands of persons hastened to the park, seven miles away, in every manner of conveyance.

To allay the fears of thousands in the park, Sousa's band, which is playing there this week, continued its concert, and while shouts of the firemen and moans of the dying mingled there came from the bandstand the notes of opera and ragtime airs. Even when the black wagon arrived from the morgue, flying its black flag, the gay tunes continued.

Bellevue Patient Starts "To Attend Looney Ball"

Goes Out in Pajamas and Slippers and Is Found Opposite
Waldorf-Astoria

During the visiting hour at Bellevue Hospital yesterday afternoon Joseph Smith, seventy-seven years old, of 440 Ninth Avenue, who for the past few weeks has been a patient in the surgical ward, slipped out of the hospital unnoticed, clad in his pajamas and a pair of slippers.

He was picked up later at Fifth Avenue and Thirty-fourth Street, across from the Waldorf-Astoria, by Patrolman Dennis Cahill, of Traffic B, who escorted his strange companion to the West Thirtieth Street station.

When asked by Lieutenant Ward where he thought he was going he explained that he was "going to the Waldorf to attend the Looney Ball." The police lieutenant, surmising that the man must be deranged, summoned an ambulance from Bellevue Hospital, to which institution the old man was taken by Dr. Sykes. He was placed in the psychiatric ward for observation.

Blakelock's Art Discovered After His Mind Was Gone

Great Artist Wearing His Life Away in Hospital for Insane When World Began to Realize That He Was a Master; Born in New York in 1847

When the world discovered Ralph Blakelock, whose death is told elsewhere in The Tribune, the artist had lost himself. Except for Henry Watrous and one or two other rare and derided critics who themselves knew Blakelock, few had heard of him as a painter up to 1897. That was the year he lost himself. Before then his eccentricities had been marked, but it was in 1897 that his friends and his family had to acknowledge that genius had become insanity and that it was no longer safe for Ralph Blakelock to be at large. That was after he had rushed with knife in hand at Mr. Watrous, whose studio he was using at the time.

Blakelock was taken to Bellevue Hospital and never again was master of himself. Three years later one of his paintings won honorable mention at the Paris Salon, and the world began to realize that he was a great painter. But he was still in the asylum, and he died there in 1901. His paintings, which were sold for a few dollars, were now being sold for thousands of dollars. His work was now being sold for thousands of dollars. Your Town

IT has been estimated that the annual food bill of the city exceeds $150,000,000. This vast amount of foodstuffs is delivered by nine railroads, forty-five steamship companies, various trucking lines and small farmers living within a radius of forty miles of the city. But despite this large and rapid service the Department of Public Markets believes that 25 per cent of the perishables arrive unfit for use. To cut down this loss by developing more rapid delivery, Commissioner Jonathan C. Day conceived the plan of establishing terminal markets where consumers could buy direct, thus cutting out additional delivery and lowering the cost of the foods.

Of the eight markets in charge of the city only one, the West Washington Market, seems to be a real terminal market. According to the plan of Commissioner Day, other terminal markets would be established in each of the boroughs. The first station would be between East 140th and East 151st streets along the Harlem River. In Brooklyn the site of the Wallabout Market would be used. The Richmond market would be built near St. George, and the Queens Borough terminal would be erected near the Greenpoint district. But the city hasn't as yet made the necessary appropriation for this extension of the Department of Public Markets.

Burglars Get $7,000; Sexton's Life Savings

Safe in Office of St. Agnes's
Chapel of Trinity Church,
91st Street, Rifled

Burglars broke into St. Agnes's Chapel of Trinity Church, 121 West Ninety-first Street, early Saturday morning and took $7,000 in cash and Liberty bonds from the safe of the sexton, Thomas Brown. The money represented the savings of a lifetime.

"That's all there was for them to take, but it was everything to me," he said. "And here I am an old man now. They went through and overturned everything, and made certain that nothing was overlooked."

"When the police came they took a lot of finger prints and caused a little more confusion than before. They said they hoped I'd get the money back, but I guess there is not much chance of it."

The sexton's office is on the second floor of the chapel, and a fire escape leads to its window. The money, $3,000 in Liberty bonds, and $1,500 in bills, was in a modern safe, but it had been opened without blowing the door off. Less than a block away a policeman was on post.

Prince of Wales Is Nearing St. John's

Cruiser Renown, With British
Heir Aboard, 150 Miles
Off Newfoundland

ST. JOHN'S, N. F., Aug. 10.—The Admiralty wireless station announced to-night that the British battleship Renown, on which the Prince of Wales is coming to this country and Canada, was met by the cruiser Dauntless 120 miles off St. John's at 3 o'clock this afternoon.

The cruiser Dragon was accompanying the Renown. The Dauntless preceded the other warships to this port last week to make arrangements for the reception of the royal visitor. The flotilla was proceeding slowly to-night in good weather, with a full moon and no fog, and will enter Conception Bay early to-morrow. It is expected that the Renown will cruise around the bay to-morrow and will come to this city on Tuesday.

It is learned that the Renown had sufficient oil to take her to Halifax. The Dragon will refuel here.

Cunard Liner Arrives After Strike Delay

Held Up in Liverpool, the Orduna Reaches Here With War Workers

After being delayed nearly a week in the Mersey River on account of a strike of dock laborers the Cunard liner Orduna, which arrived here from Liverpool yesterday, carried more than 1,000 Canadian troops to Halifax.

Mrs. Wallace W. Cummock and Miss Jean H. White, both of Evanston, Ill., returned after a year abroad, working for the American Committee for French Wounded. Mrs. Cummock said the organization, which had its inception in Paris in the fall of 1914, would erect a memorial hospital in Paris.

Other passengers included Willard P. Butler, a New York lawyer, a cousin of Sir Alfred Booth, who returned from a trip abroad on legal matters. Colonel Richard Dowse, of the 4th Australian Division, arrived on his way to Sydney, Australia. Mrs. Dowse, who has been residing here since 1916, met him at the pier. He wore decorations of the Distinguished Service Order and the British War Cross, awarded for gallantry in action when, together with the 27th and 30th United States Divisions, the Australians smashed the Hindenburg line on September 29, 1918. He was accompanied by Major W. S. Rose and Lieutenant G. G. Swan.

Two days out of Halifax, William Guiney, a steward and elevator operator on the Orduna, fell down the elevator shaft and was instantly killed.

A Soldier Says—

SUPPLY SERGEANT PETER JANS, Company B, 18th Infantry, who has been in the army for more than five years, believes the matter of universal military training is entirely dependent upon the league of nations. "If a real league is established," he says, "I hardly think anything will be gained by enforcing compulsory military training. But if the scheme for world organization falls through it will be absolutely necessary that our country be prepared and that our lads be fit to do their duty. If no league of nations is established I think it advisable that we adopt some measure like the national service act and give our youths the proper training."

During the war Sergeant Jans was training recruits at Camp Fremont, Cal., and in some of the Eastern camps. "I must say," he said, "that the green Westerners are a sight more willing to stand the dull routine of drilling than some of the more active city fellows from the East."

One Enemy Alien Escapes; Another Stopped by Bullet

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., Aug. 10.—Richard Luders and Robert Beese, two enemy aliens confined at the prison barracks at Fort Oglethorpe, made a dash for liberty early to-day during an electrical rainstorm. Luders was stopped by a bullet from the rifle of a guard and Beese escaped.

Luders' injuries are not serious. Both men had escaped previously but later were recaptured.

HARRIMAN NATIONAL BANK

Fifth Avenue and 44th Street
NEW YORK

Overbuying

"What am I entitled to?" This is a question frequently met by the banker, and comes from the man who, submitting a statement with the intention of establishing credit with a bank, puts it in this form in order to learn how much the bank will lend him.

On the basis of mere figures, the inquirer is "entitled" to nothing, but the said figures, having been made by an honest, successful, intelligent business man, reflect his ability and personal responsibility and, therefore, do form a gauge as to what extent the bank may reasonably accommodate him.

However, a bank does not like to have the matter brought to it in this way, for it corresponds exactly with a strange buyer coming to this merchant and saying to him, "How much goods will you sell me?" Of course, if the buyer comes from a house of world reputation, there is practically no limit to the amount of goods which will be sold him, but if he is not so well known, the amount of goods which will be sold him will be dependent upon his standing with the trade from which he makes his purchases, his banks, and the community that knows him, his personal habits, and other data.

There is another side to this question. A bank might offer a merchant more than he could legitimately use in his business and the merchant might accept it, showing therein the same unwisdom as he would show if he overbought in goods.
